Recruiting all Raconteurs!

Raconteur Media is a London based publishing house that produces independent special interest reports and supplements exclusively for News International – The Times and The Sunday Times.

We are a hand-picked collection of some of the best and most experienced people within this industry. With the freshest ideas and strongest momentum in the market, we are a high growth company with tremendous expectations on all levels.

A candidate that is looking for a role and company that is truly entrepreneurial and business minded (not just in wording) is at the top of our list at the moment. As a Publisher at Raconteur Media, you will be managing 6 different print projects a year from their inception to the finished project. You will have the opportunity to meet and pitch to high-level Directors and work with some of the UK's leading journalists while putting together publications for The Times and The Sunday Times.

It is an extremely demanding role, but if you do it the right way it is also immensely rewarding and profitable. Raconteur Media offers the highest level of commissions in the industry and we also operate with the most beneficial margins. You don't need to have any previous experience in the media industry - but you do need to be a great operator in whatever tasks and challenges you undertake. Great sales, networking and relationship building skills are also essential to succeed in this field.

If you think this is a career for you, let us know as soon as possible.
